STOBIE-REID WEDDINGS.

Wedding Bells Ring for One of Hilo's Most Popular Couples.

The marriage of C. A. Stobie and Eliza McCarroll Reid was solemnized last Saturday evening at the home of Dr. R. H. Reid by Rev. G. L. Pearson. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties. The Episcopal service was used. After the impressive ceremony, and congratulations, the guests were served with a delightful supper, which concluded the party drove to the home of J. T. Moir at Papaikou, where they have been guests for a week.

The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of crepe de chine over tan silk, and wore but one ornament, a brilliant star studded with diamonds, the gift of the groom. Mrs. R. H. Reid and her daughter Carol wore pink gowns. The decorations were pink and green. The dining room, in which the ceremony was performed, was richly decorated. The rear was made into a bank of palms, ferns and roses. Streamers of male and pink ribbons, stretched from the chandelier to the corners of the room and at the apex of the pyramid thus formed, hung a mass of beautiful wild roses from the mountains.

The presents left for the happy couple were numerous and rich. The display of cut glass was a conspicuous feature of these tokens of friendship and good will. Mr. and Mrs. Stobie will take a cottage at the Hilo Hotel.

The Union services at Haili Church last Sunday evening were of the highest class and unusually instructive and entertaining. The address of the evening was made by Rev. G. L. The motion songs and recitations were especially praiseworthy.

CAMP LITTLE.

Company D Encampment at Coconut Island Over Sunday.

The members of Company D have had a taste of camp life. They went into camp at Coconut Island last Saturday afternoon; fought mosquitoes, cockroaches and centipedes Saturday and Sunday nights and broke camp Monday. The boys had a royal outing. They have learned a thing or two about roughing it and all are glad they are in the service.

Coconut Island is an ideal spot for a military encampment. It is big enough for a company, but its dimensions are too small for a regiment. There is barely enough room for the sentries to fall into a good swinging walk before they must turn about and go the other way. But nothing hindered the members of Company D from being good soldiers in camp. Sunday afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock was visitors hour. Hilo went to Coconut Island. Captain Fetter and his men gave a glad hand to everybody. Louie, the boatman, had to call in an auxiliary flotilla to aid him in conveying passengers to and from the tented island. At the officers headquarters visitors were received with open hospitality. Refreshments were served to all with a lavish hand. Prof. Carvalho and his corps of excellent musicians discoursed patriotic airs and the afternoon was one of rare pleasure to the soldier hosts and the civilian guests. At about 3 o'clock Judge Little, for whom the camp was named, appeared on the scene and was given a welcome reception. He was taken in charge by Captain Fetter and Sergeant Reid and with them he inspected the camp. After inspection, the company stood in line and at the request of the Captain, Judge Little made a brief address which was greeted with cheers from the members and visitors.

A meeting of the Republican club of the Seventh precinct will be held tonight for the purpose of nominating members of the District Committee and delegates to the Territorial Convention.

The writer is pleased to note the growing sentiment in Kona and other places in favor of Judge Little for delegate to Congress. The Judge has the entire support of Hamakua. We know him to be a man of ability and nothing in the political way would please us more than to have him as our representative in Congress.

It is reported that Jim Clements was buried in Waimea without coffin or ceremony. If such is the case action should be taken to punish those whose duty it was to give him proper burial. Because Jim Clements was an unfortunate pauper is no justification for the reported burial he received at the hands of those in authority. It is the policy of governments to have poor persons supported by the community where they were living when pauperism took possession of them, and where all the facts are best known. It was either through ignorance or neglect on the part of the officials at Waimea that the reported shameful act occurred.

Rover, the Great Dane.

Rover, the fine Great Dane, belonging to Miss Elsa Grubb matron of the Hilo hospital died last week from an attack of acute jaundice. Miss Grubb had only lately refused an offer of $500 for the blooded dog but feels her loss more on account of the noble instincts of the animal than because of its money value. Rover boasted of a long line of imperial sires. He was sired by Marco, property of Ashe, by imported Marlock, by Hector out of Prince L., all notable canines and celebrated prize winners. On the maternal side his lineage was equally royal. His mother was Nellie, owned by A. B. Spreckels, by Queen, by Belle L. Rover was without a bar sinister in all his forebears.
